

My View of Reality (short version)

(reading time: 1 min.)

A small percentage of humanity (estimated at 1-4 %) is incapable of perceiving or feeling the emotions of others. Scientists call this Anti-Social Personality Disorder (ASPD). Such people know only their own desires, and nothing else matters to them. They are destroying everything. They have acquired so much wealth that they are unstoppable. They own virtually everyone. Climate change will not be stopped due to their obstruction. The world will become increasingly chaotic, and eventually military-ruled. Then the military will kill the ASPD's and confiscate their wealth. Then the military will splinter into competing warlords. Eventually all technological systems will break down, and it will be tribes with hand-made weapons. A few sane, rational groups of scientists may build self-supporting, underground colonies that last until the outside world is primitive and not a threat. But forget about getting through to the vast majority of humanity to prevent this. They are insane, irrational, and too stupid to understand or accept science. You may be able to save yourself, but not them.